Stephen Hamilton

Stations of the Cross

Marcel Dupré

The image shows Stephen Hamilton, an older man with white hair, wearing a dark suit, playing a large pipe organ in a church setting. The organ is dark wood with many pipes and a large console. The background shows the interior of a church with stained glass windows.

Stations of the Cross
Sunday, March 8, 2020 4:00PM

International concert organist Stephen Hamilton will perform the monumental composition "The Stations of the Cross, Op. 29" by Marcel Dupré.

Dupré originally improvised this work as a series of meditations on the fourteen stations of the cross interspersed with poetry of Paul Claudel. The result was such a success that he wrote it down, resulting in one of the most profound large-scale pieces of the organ repertoire.

Good Friday Service
April 10, 2020 ~ 7:00PM

Over a decade after he officially retired, Rossini composed his final major work, the Stabat Mater, as a somber dedication to the suffering of the Virgin Mary as she mourns her son on the cross.

Soloists: Rachel Carter, soprano, Robyn Rocklein, mezzo soprano, Samuel Hall, tenor and Christopher Holloway, baritone will perform this monumental work with full orchestra under the direction of Andrew R. Galuska.
